After a year of media headlines filled with Covid-19 related stories, the 'Belt and Road' Initiative (BRI) is back, and in full force. President Xi Jinping confirmed its continued importance for China's foreign policy in his speech at the Boao Forum last week. At the same time, the implementation of the Initiative is facing an increasingly challenging environment as we enter a new decade marked by rising geopolitical volatility and economic instability.

Against such a backdrop, what can be done to breathe new life into the 'Belt and Road' Initiative?

Check this week's Beijing Weekly Roundup to find out.
